CROSS COUNTRY REFUELING AIRPLANE 'LOST'

SURVEY OF PROPERTY MADE

One of the most important inner harbor projects in recent years was started yesterday morning when surveyors under direction of E. A. Hoffman, city engineer, started work on the Santa Fe and neighboring property in preparation for the dredging of Cutting Canal.

According to W. B. Trull, local agent for the Santa Fe railroad, dredging of the canal will be started as soon as the surveyors complete their work which will be in about three weeks, according to Hoffman.

Hoffman is making a topographical survey of the property to indicate the amount of fill to be placed on the property from the channel dredging. The amount of material to be removed from the canal is being checked against the amount of fill needed to bring some of the property up to certain levels.

To Move Boats

Owners of several houseboats on the canal have been informed that they must vacate immediately in preparation for the dredging work. The yacht harbor will not be disturbed by the work according to Trull.

At a recent meeting of the property owner s adjoining the proposed shipping canal, held in the office of J.R. Hayden, assistant traffic manager of the Santa Fe railroad, Hoffman was selected to make the survey, which marks the first step in the consummation of the plans under consideration for some time.

It is planned to dredge the channel along Ellis slough to a point near Cutting boulevard to permit ocean going liners to use the channel The channel is to be 300 feet wide, 4,000 feet long and 32 feet deep, while a turning basin will be dredged at the end near Cutting boulevard.

Property Owners

In addition to the Santa Fe railroad some of the other property owners on the proposed canal are: San Francisco Bridge company, Duncanson and Harrelson, Proctor and Gamble, Richmond Navigation and Improvement company, Enterprise Foundry company, Richmond Investment company and A. Banzoff.

Although the war department declined to issue a permit for the establishment of harbor lines along the channel, officials said that a permit for the dredging and filling work would be granted upon application by the property owners.

Several contemplated improvements and the establishment of a large industry on a portion of the Sante Fe property have been rumored for some time and it is reported that the completion of the improvement will see a number of important developments in that section of the waterfront.

BOY SCOUT RESCUES TWO

ANTIOCH, Aug. 15—A 17 year old Antioch Boy Scout today saved the lives of two little children from death by drowning in the San Joaquin river.

While walking home from school today Kenneth Compta heard the screams of two little tots.

Plunging into the river, Compta dragged Helen Baer, 11, and Peter Wilbur, 14, to safety.

Chinese Troops Retake Village

LONDON, Aug. 15 (Friday)—The Daily Mail's Hong Kong correspondent reported today that Chinese troops after a six hour battle Tuesday had recaptured Nordun near Manchuli, which had been invaded by Soviet troops and also reported that Soviet gunboats had fired on Chinese war vessels in the Sungari river, damaging three of them.

SOVIET goodwill plane in which four crack aviators of Russia are on their way to the United States. They plan to cross to Alaksa from Siberia and then curve down the Pacific coast to Seattle. They will then fly across the continent to New York.

POURING OF CONCRETE ON TENTH SOON

The pouring of concrete on South Tenth street, entrance to the Ford factory site on the Richmond inner harbor will be started next Wednesday according to E. A. Hoffman, city engineer.

Although the street work has progressed far enough so that the concrete could be poured now, laying of the water main by the Eastbay Public Utility district is holding up the paving work temporarily Hoffman reported.

Hoffman also reported that the north half of the municipal wharf will be completed within a week while the south half will be completed about two weeks later.

Although it is not known if Tenth street will be available for use due to paving operations, when the harbor celebration is held next month, adequate provisions will be made so that motorists can reach the scene of the festivities, Hoffman stated yesterday.

If Tenth street is blocked, a grader will be run over Eighth street which will be sprinkled to settle the dust, Hoffman stated.

Yanni Will Trial Opens In Martinez

MARTINEZ, Aug. 15.— Trial started today before Superior Judge A. B McKenzie of a contest over the will of the late Guiseppe Yanni, of Richmond, who died Feb. 15, 1929.

Under the terms of the will, Mrs. Theresa Banducci, a friend was made heir to Yanni's estate which is valued at $3000.

Acting upon the request of Yanni's mother in Italy, Mrs. Mary Yanni the Italian consul of San Francisco started action contesting the will, contending that it was not properly acknowledged and that Yanni was incompetent when he made the will.

Mrs. Carolina Jester and Mrs. Louise Madigan, hospital nurses, testified that they signed the will as witnesses after reading its contents. After hearing the testimony Judge McKenzie denied a motion to bar the will from probate. The question of incompetency is yet to be settled.

Carnival Man Drowns In Pool

PASO ROBLES, Aug. 15.—UP—The body of Arno Lau, an employe of the Foley and Burke carnival company, of San Francisco, was taken from a swimmin gpool here today a few minutes after he failed to rise from a dive.

An inquest will be held Friday to learn if death was caused by heart failure or drowning.

MOSCOW TO GREET ZEP

MOSCOW, Aug. 15—UP—Approach of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin towards Moscow tonight redoubled the interest of the public and officials here in the long flight from Friedrichshafen to Tokio on the second stage of the world.

As the Graf Zeppelin crossed the Soviet border early this evening, every Soviet agency was prepared to give any aid which Dr. Hugo Echener and his crew of 40 men may need on the flight over Russia and Siberia.

Aviation and radio officials closely followed the flight of the dirigible with its 20 passengers from the time it left Friedrichshafen at 10:35 p. m. E. S. T. Wednesday. Swinging northward, the Graf Zeppelin passed over a cheering and joyful Berlin before it turned to the east for the day's flight to the Russian border.

Flying in pleasant weather, the dirigible made an average of about 60 miles an hour on its flight along the Baltic coast line. It passed over the free city of Danzig at 8:55 a. m. E. S. T. and was loudly cheered as it circled the city hall.

Koenigsburg was the next point—just an hour and 20 minutes later—before the dirigible crossed into Lithuania.

GIANT ZEPPELIN ENTERS RUSSIA ON FLIGHT

BERLIN, Aug. 15—UP—The Telegraphen Union correspondent at Riga reported tonight that the Graf Zeppelin crossed the Latvian border and entered Russia near Duesaburg (Latavia) at 8:20 p. m. (2:20 p. m E. S. T.). Duenaburg is slightly west of the Russo-Latvian border.

Collector Pays $50 Fine Here

Henry Cromarty of Oakland, a collector for a magazine house, paid a fine of $50 when he appeared before Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday on a reduced charge of disturbing the peace. Cromarty also received a jail sentence of 60 days on which committment was withheld.

Cromarty was arrested late in July and on Aug. 7 appeared before Judge Odell pleading guilty to the lesser charge which had been preferred by a Richmond housewife.

$50,000 In Jewels Lost

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16—UP—Jewels valued at $50,000 were sought here tonight by police at the request of their owner, Mrs. Langdon Harris, wealthy widow of Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Harris said she lost her jewels somewhere between a downtown hotel and a beachhill cafe.

WHARF FETE COMMITTEES WILL MEET

With the object of making the Sept. 14 celebration at the Parr Richmond Terminal the outstanding event of the kind in Richmond, a large group of committees will come together next Wednesday noon to plan the final details, it was announced yesterday.

Preliminary arrangements call for entertaining at least 2,000 persons, with an elaborate program, which will include a buffet dinner to be served in the big cargo shed itself.

As outlined now the program for the day will be as follows:

Six-thirty o'clock, buffet dinner at the Terminal.

Eight-thirty, travel motion pictures and dancing until midnight.

At the dinner, T. M. Carlson, city attorney, will be master of ceremonies, introducing a short list of speakers, yet to be selected, who will describe the new terminal and the general developments on the inner harbor leading up to still further progress.

Frank Chandler will be chairman of the general arrangements committee for the dock celebration, and James A. McVittie will be chairman of the dinner committee.

A feature of the entertainment will be an elaborate automobile show by the Richmond dealers in one end of the big cargo shed. This will be under the direction of a dealers' committee headed by J. P. Strom, president of the Motor Car Dealers' association. Members of Strom's committee will assist with the decoration of the building and other features.

Plans now call for the presence of two large cargo ships and one naval vessel. A display of fireworks will be held during the evening.

Perfect U. S. Back Chosen

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—UP—An all American back, physically speaking, was selected here today and was found to be that of Miss Laurie Sherman.

Competing against 41 other girls Miss Sherman won the annual American beautiful back contest, a feature of the National Progressive Chiropractic convention.

The rest of the backfield—second, third and fourth place winners—will be chosen Sunday at Venice beach. Miss Sherman, who outclassed her opponents by several vertebrae, was adjudged the winner on symery, strength, vigor and beauty.

CITY READY TO GREET I.D.E.S.

Final plans for the reception of 2000 delegates to the I. D. E. S. convention to be held in Richmond Sept. 13 to 18 were completed last night by the members of the executive committee in the chamber of commerce rooms.

Mrs. Helen Kingsbury of the chamber of commerce reported that every effort is being made to secure housing facilities for the huge crowd of visitors. Hotels, rooming houses and apartment houses as well as many private homes have notified Mrs. Kingsbury that accommodations will be available.

The entertainment committee, headed by Mrs. Mattie Chandler, reported that plans for the entertainment of the delegates and visitors are now complete. Talent will be secured from San Francisco and Oakland to augment Richmond persons on the varied program being arranged.

The quota set for financing the convention has nearly been subscribed, according to Clifford C. Anglim, chairman of the finance committee. He reported that the Richmond merchants and civic bodies are cooperating whole heartedly for the convention.

One of the features of the entertainment for the visitors will be a gigantic public barbecue at Alvarado park on Sept. 19. E. M. Downer and M. R. Marcos, who head the committee, reported that plans for the event were progressing.

Hotel Carquinez, which will be official headquarters for the convention, is making preparations to receive the grand officers and register the delegates, according to G. Vargas, general chairman of the convention committee.

Those attending the meeting last night were Vargas, J. C. Freitas, Frank Silveira, M. R. Marcos, E. M. Downer, J. A. McVittie, C. C. Anglim, Aubrey Wilson, P. M. Sanford, Bert Curry, Mrs. Mattie A. Chandler, and Mrs. Helen Kingsbury.

Mother Wins In Fight To Remain In U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15—UP—Only a few hours before she was to have boarded a train for deportation to Greece, an action that would have separated her from a three year old child, Mrs. Anna Nichels, 28, was told tonight that she could stay in this country until her case was more carefully considered.

Orders from Washington authorities, which followed intervention of Senator Hiram Johnson and Congresswoman Florence P. Kahn in behalf of the woman, demanded that the deportation proceedings be stopped temporarily.

Mrs. Nichols had lived for 23 years in this country, but married a Greek army officer eight years ago. A yearning to come back to the United States after her marriage made her risk a successful crossing of the Mexican border. A few years later she separated from her husband and kept custody of two children, a six year old boy who was born in Greece and a three year old girl who was born here.

She was arrested a week ago for illegal entry into the United States and laws of the country made it necessary for her to take the son with her to the home land while a passport would have to be secured for the girl, a detail which would require several months. Further, the mother did not know how she could pay for the daughter's transportation.

Death Driver Gets 10 Years

REDWOOD CITY Aug. 15.—UP—Sentence of from one to 10 years in San Quentin was given Carl Flannigan here today for causing the death of Mrs. Louis C. Montegue and Mrs. Mary J. Crocker, social leader, in an auto accident. Flannigan was convicted by a jury on a charge of manslaughter.

Leader Of I. D. E. S.

C. R. FREITAS, supreme president of the I. D. E. S., who will preside at a state session of the organization to be held in Richmond Sept. 13 to 18.

Water Rate Raised To Pay Judgements

PITTSBURG, Aug. 15—To pay off judgments aggregating $50,000 rendered against the city of Pittsburgh, the city council last night decided to increase the water service charges from $1.75 to $2 monthly.

The damages were a result of the death of one and illness of 19 others from a typhoid epidemic in 1921. The epidemic was held due to river water being served to consumers without being properly chlorinated.

Formal action on the increase is scheduled to be taken by the council at its September meeting. Industrial concerns, it is said, will not be effected by the increase.

An increase of 10 cents in the tax rate for park development was also decided upon by the council. This will place the tax rate at $1.60.

Driver Loses Arm In Crockett Crash

MARTINEZ, Aug. 15.— As a result of their automobile crashing into the concrete abutment at the approach to the Carquinez bridge this morning, Raymond Ortege, 610 N street and Serapio Guevara of 406 Twelfth street, Sacramento, are in the county hospital here.

Ortega's right hand was so badly lacerated that physicians were forced to amputate it. The arm is also broken above the elbow. Guevara is suffering from bruises and lacerations.

According to authorities Guevara, swerved his car into the middle of the highway to pass a parked machine and lost control of the automobile which crashed into the wall.

El Cerrito Man Dies In Street Car Crash

Funeral services are pending at an Oakland funeral chapel for Anton Vierra, 423 Kearney street, El Cerrito ,who died at the Highland hospital in Oakland yesterday morning as a result o finjuries suffered when he was hit by a street car.

The accident occurred at East Fourteenth street near Twenty-third street Oakland. Vierra was walking across the street when he was struck by a Key car, according to police.

Deceased leaves a widow, Mrs. Mary Vierra and several children. An inquest into the death is now pending.

Northern Forests Hard Hit By Fires

SPOKANE, WASH., Aug. 15—UP—Major forest fires today swept vast timbered areas in the Kootenai, Kanikso, Pend Oreville and St. Joe forests.

More than 40,000 acres have been covered by flames in the Kettle Falls region while new fires were reported in the Colville forest near the Canadian border and in the Republic district.

Fresh blazes broke out in the Clearwater district in Idaho. The Twisp fire near Wenatchee gradually approaches open country and a crew of 650 firefighters expected to check it soon.

The little town of Dole, Wash., in Clark county, appeared as if it might be wiped out last night by a fire that swept over logged off lands toward the settlement. Every available man and boy was on the fire lines. The blaze started more than a week ago but flared up anew under a high wind.

Endurance Fliers Forced To Land

LONG BEACH, Aug. 15—UP—A fouled spark plug today ended the nonrefueling endurance flight attempt of Jack Reid, chief pilot for the Emsco aircraft corporation, and Emory Bronte, who flew to Hawaii with Ernie Smith.

After 27 hours and 29 minutes in the air they landed at 9:33 a. m. The present record of 65 hours and 25 minutes is held by two German fliers. Reid said he would take the plane to Cleveland, O., for a solo endurance flight and that he and Bronte might make another attempt together here later.

PLANE DUE HERE AT DAWN

PORTLAND, ORE., Aug. 15—UP—Belief that the Spokane "Sun God" either had made a forced landing or had changed its announced course and headed directly east from Spokane was expressed here tonight when more than four hours and a half has elapsed after the plane took off from Felts field, Spokane on a transcontinental round trip refueling flight.

Lieut. Nick Mamer and his co-pilot, Art Walker, were due over Swan Island airport here shortly after 9 p. m. However, at 10:30 p. m. there was no sign of the plane. Officials of the Mamer Aviation corporation remained at the airport as they said that they planned to check the plane on its way south to San Francisco.

Dispaches of both of the Union Pacific and S. P. and S. railroads after checking with their offices along the airmail route between Spokane and Portland reported that the Buhl airsedan had not been heard or sighted.

Outside of cross winds between Spokane and Portland, ideal flying conditions prevailed, the weather bureau said.

If the Sun God headed directly east from Spokane the move was in direct variance with all pre-

SAILORS HELD AFTER CRASH

PITTSBURG, Aug. 15.—Following a collision between a tug and a river steamer, near a wharf here last night, J. Novatny, 43, captain of the tug "Kieth," and Dick Dorath, deckhand, were charged with drunkenness. Dorath was thrown into the river by the impact of the collision and was saved by W. W. Patterson, another member of the tug crew.

There were 30 passengers on board the steamer "Capital City" the largest steamer plying the San Joaquin river. Damage to the steamer was estimated at $15,000.

Novatny and Dorath are to appear in court tomorrow.

Four Couples Continue Grind In Time Dance

Four couples were still pacing the floor in Joe Rossi's El Cerrito dance marathon last night. The couples had passed their 484th hour of continuous rancing. According to Rossi, they are all in the best of condition and he does not expect any of them to withdraw before next week.

A special program is being arranged for the Saturday night crowd, Rossi declares. Outside talent will assist the dancers in presenting a fun program.

Boys Committee Of Y M C A Maps Plans For Fall

Members of the Boys committee of the Richmond Y. M. C. A. met in headquarters last night with Reynold Carlson, secretary. The plans for activities for the fall term were outlined.

The committee discussed the starting of a leadership training course in the near future. The meeting was attended by George Harlow, F. C. Shallenberger and C. V. Howell.

JOURNEY

The miles click pertinently from the rails,
The landscape flashes resolutely by,
And the dim smother of a loose smoke trails
Its caravan of nimbus in the sky.

The moments spread their distance through my heart
Till Blood and beat break poignantly in two,
And I am but a shadow torn apart
From the familiarity of you.

Landscape and miles are pitiless and fleet,
And will not stay for any mortal prayer—
If I could only turn them back to meet
Your eyes, and find your dear love waiting there!

HAPPINESS HUNTERS

"RESTLESS"—yes, maybe the modern girl does deserve that favorite adjective of her milder critics. But "resigned" she is NOT, and a very good thing, if you ask us! She may not find her happiness, but it's not for lack of hunting. Sometimes we think that the difference between the woman of to-day and the woman of earlier days—whom we all know through the novels about her if we are too young to have known her in crinoline or even in bustles—is not so much a difference in clothes, or in jobs, or in education, or in voting, as a contrasting point of view.

Isn't the test of a modern feminine mind the conviction that a woman must go after what she wants instead of waiting for it—like a lady?

What has just suggested this test to us is the reading of Ellen Glasgow's superb new novel, "They Stooped to Folly." It will be, for many women, the novel of the summer because in sympathetic understanding, in luminously witty phrase, in full-bodied characterization, the book is "the woman of it" between covers. Nobody ever understood her sex—or explained it—better than Miss Glasgow. (Incidentally, no woman understands men better—or laughs at them more charmingly!)

THREE generations of women meet and mingle in "They Stooped to Folly"—the meek Mid-Victorian, the late Victorian of the Naughty Nineties, the Post-War Girl. Oh, those irreproachable, dutiful, patient wives of yesteryear, who did everything for their men except take spontaneous delight in them! The wife of this sort embraced, endured, pitied; it was she whom somebody (was it Wilde?) described as "a cross between an angel and an idiot."

Yet she wasn't always as stupid as she appeared to be. She would not criticise her husband to his face, so he thought she blindly and fully refused to criticise him at all. He should have heard what she said to herself, or perhaps to her best woman friend! She could dismiss him as placidly and terrifyingly as did Victoria, the perfect Victorian wife in Miss Glasgow's book:

"'Men are made that way,' she added the more tenderly because she had never really liked them. 'They are made that way, unobservant, complacent, easily satisfied.'"

Then there was Mrs. Dalrymple, who belonged in spirit to the Naughty Nineties, or to the Edwardian Era—Mrs. Dalrymple with "a ming that had never been able to think twice about anything and a figure that had falsely advertised her as ardent." She, too, despite her scandalous love affairs, had been essentially a Waiter, a person who took life and men as they came to her, instead of going after what she wanted. She is left to reflect, sadly:

"I've had more love than most women, I suppose, and what has it ever done for me in the past? Nothing. Absolutely nothing that I can show for it. Nothing that will be worth a row of pins to me when I am old. If you're careful, card sense will stay by you when you need it, and sometimes put money in your pocket long after you have lost your looks. But presents, even if they are set in platinum, go out of fashion. . . . If I had my life to live over again, I'd know better than to put my main dependence upon love."

BUT the tragedy of the Woman Who Waited is best summed up by Louisa, the Old Maid in "They Stooped to Folly," who waited all her life in vain for the man she loved. Even her eyes are opened at last to the preposterousness of the point of view to which she was brought up.

"Being a woman, she knew that the modesty of the past was a false, not a true deity, and delighted in sacrifice. No, it wasn't worth it, she said in a strained whisper, as if some one were listening: it wasn't worth it, at least to women. Nothing was worth all the deceit, all the anguish, all the futile hope and ineffectual endeavor, all the pretense and parade, all the artificial glamour and empty posturing, of the great Victorian tradition. Yes, she knew. . . . She knew what it had all meant to women. She had lived through the ages of waiting, and she knew every throb, every ache, every pang, every quiver. She had lived through it all. For her heart had cracked and broken as quietly as the hearts of all perfect Southern ladies broke beneath the enameled surface of beautiful behavior. And now, cool, composed, indulgent, self-contained, and easily amused, she watched with sympathy the liberal manners of the new century."

More liberal they are—even our own backward perspective of twenty years or so (to the time when we were in college) supports this encouraging conclusion. Girls, we repeat, have a better chance than ever before to go after happiness, instead of waiting passively till it comes to them—or passes them by.

The girl with wisdom (and brothers) knows better than to be completely candid in her attitude toward men and THE man. But she may show her feelings more frankly than the Victorian girl did, and the free-and-easy association of the sexes to-day gives her more chances to meet and attract the man she wants.

Not that she always wins him. Men are still kittle cattle. Yet, again, the fashion in unrequited love has changed. The girl suffering from it has an increasingly large collection of consolation prizes from which to choose. There are work and its rewards. There are sports and other hobbies. There are friendships and organized activities. And if nothing is as good as the heart one wanted, yet many things are better than yesteryear's vacuum for the old maid.

Valiantly girls and women hunt happiness to-day. They may not find it, but they find interest and adventure and development. And at least they're living in the active voice, instead of existing as perfect ladies of passive resignation!

MUSINGS ON MENUS MODERNISTIC

BY NANCY DORRIS

Native green corn, sweet and milky, arrives in abundance on the market in August. The price and the time are right for free indulgence in the white and yellow varieties of this delicate vegetable.

NANCY DORRIS

Those who know corn insist that young corn must be cut and cooked within an hour, or it is not corn at its best. Housewives depending upon market corn rarely get strictly fresh corn, then.

Alice Foote MacDougall, who knows a thing or two about food, suggests that a little sugar in the boiling water renders corn garden fresh although it has lain for hours in the sun of a New York street.

When corn is in season and almost perfect, the simplest ways of cooking bring out its true flavor: corn on the cob, steamed, boiled, roasted or broiled, and corn off the cob, stewed, steamed in milk or butter. Then there is succotash, green corn kernels combined with boiled, shelled beans and dressed with butter or cream and seasonings.

As salt toughens the corn it should not be used during the cooking process. At table each individual should butter, salt and pepper corn on the cob. Corn off the cob should be salted just before serving.

Long cooking is also ruinous to tender corn. Each batch of corn should be a law unto itself: cooked until tender. Very young corn may be coddled like an egg in boiling water ten minutes.

For the benefit of the young housewife this recipe is given for

BOILED CORN ON THE COB (2)

Four ears of fresh corn.
Two quarts of boiling water.
One-half tablespoon sugar.
Boiling time: 10 to 15 minutes.
Butter, salt, pepper.

In preparing the corn for cooking, remove the outer husks only. Fold back the inner husks, strip off the silk, using a dry brush to remove any stubborn bits, and cut away any imperfect kernels. Fold the inner husks over the corn and tie lightly with a husk or cord. A sweeter corn follows the use of the inner husks which may be removed in a jiffy before serving.

The culinary tools and utensils for the corn cookery include the vegetable brush, sharp knife, large saucepan, quart measure, tablespoon, cover for saucepan or some outer husks, clock, serving dish, napkin.

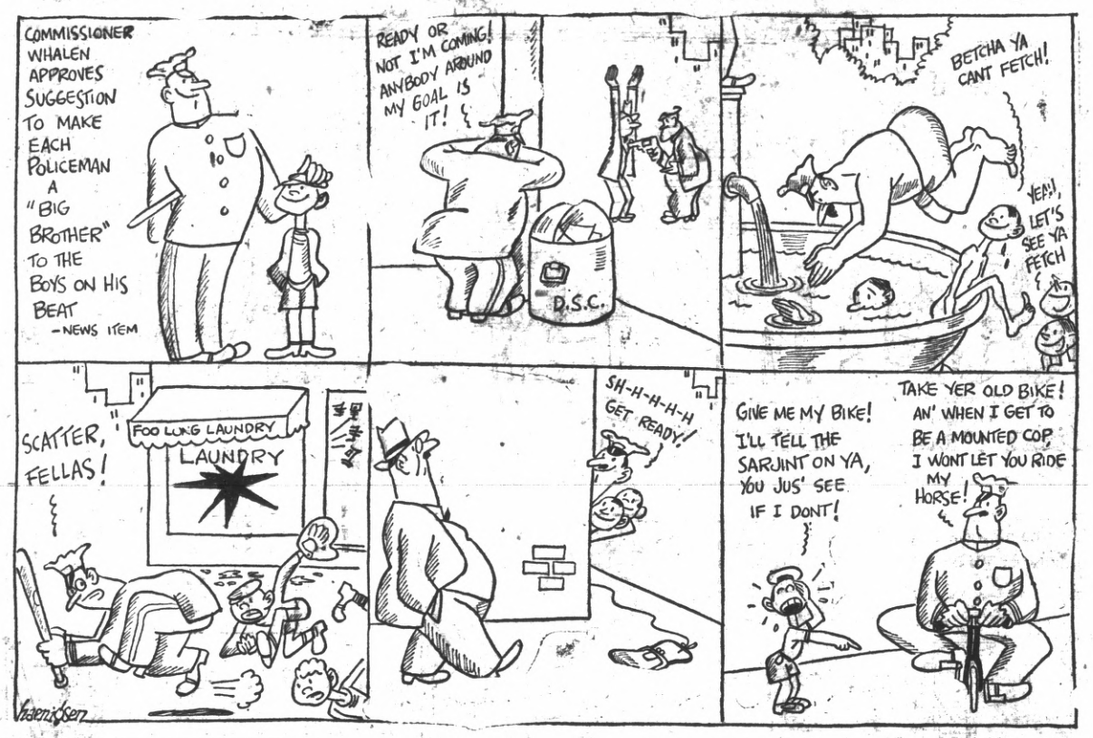

The water should be freshly boiling when the sugar is added. Place the corn in the water, cover with the husks or a lid and let boil for ten to fifteen minutes, or until the kernels are tender.

Lift the corn from the water, drain, remove husks and place in heated serving dish. Cover with a napkin to keep hot and serve. Melted butter, salt and pepper are added at table.

Any left-over corn on the cob may be heated gently in milk or butter with good effect. Cut the kernels from the cob and scrape off any remaining pulp with the back of the knife. Place the kernels and pulp in a saucepan with a little butter for sauteed corn, or milk for stewed corn, and cook slowly two to five minutes. Season and serve.

Fresh corn cut from the cob may be placed in a double boiler with scalded milk to cover, a little butter and cooked until the raw taste disappears. Then it is seasoned with salt and pepper and served.

Big Brothers — By Haenigsen

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

By Robert Barry

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Virginia's gubernatorial primary to-day is but the first phase of the bitter factionalism in the Old Dominion. The outcome, from a national viewpoint, may clarify the muggy atmosphere hanging over since the Presidential contest of 1928. Again, to-day's results may be indicative merely of the intensity of the issue to be settled at the election in November.

The political future of the State is in the balance.

Irrespective of public utterances, religious differences are just as vital in this gubernatorial contest as when the State broke away from the Democratic Party last year and gave Hoover a majority of 13,717.

The attempt is being made to wrest control of Democratic organization from those Democrats who supported the national ticket of their party. The effort is to rebuke Gov. Harry F. Byrd for having been loyal to Smith and to pave the way for a contest on Senator Carter Glass next year.

The anti-Catholic party in Virginia is expected to vote in to-day's Democratic primary against the nomination of Dr. John Garland Pollard and in the event of his nomination to support William Mosely Brown, the fusion choice of Bishop Cannon and C. Bascom Slemp.

An impressive victory for Dr. Pollard to-day would go a long way toward re-establishing the control of the regular Democratic organization in Virginia. He has been indorsed by Gov. Byrd. He is assailed by all those who believe that Gov. Byrd has been trying to turn Virginia over to the Pope and that the Capitol at Richmond has been in daily communication with Rome through the Arlington radio station, which happens to belong to the United States navy of which President Hoover is Commander-in-Chief.

There is hardly any way of knowing how many anti-Catholic Democrats who vote against Pollard to-day will stay at home on election day or else vote for the Cannon-Republican candidate. Should Dr. Pollard fail to win over his two rivals for the Democratic nomination by 25,000 or more, some observers might incline to the view that the fusion candidate could cause him some trouble, and this in a State where a Democratic nomination has been the equivalent of an election since the Civil War.

All of the reports Washington receives are to the effect that disclosures about Bishop Cannon's relations with a defunct New York bucket shop have not injured him greatly with the bulk of his political following. It is said that those who believe the stories at all are convinced that the cleric is a martyr at the hands of New York newspapers, which are controlled by the "whiskey ring" or by Rome. Others do not believe the stories, regarding them as pure fictions of mendacious minds.

In the cities, where newspapers are read, the Bishop's affairs have been discussed rather extensively but it remains to be seen how much credence is placed in the press reports.

G. Walter Mapp, a State Senator, and Rosewell Page are opponents of Dr. Pollard in to-day's Democratic contest. Mapp has been a long-time political associate of Bishop Cannon. Both are Methodists. In this campaign, Mapp has had some rather harsh things to say about the anti-Smith Democrats. It is believed, however, that in the hope of beating Pollard the Hoovercrats who go into the Democratic primary to-day will vote for Mapp. That view is traceable to repeated assertions that Mapp would be easier to elect in November than Pollard. Brown and Pollard are Presbyterians.

Some of the best of the authorities on Virginia politics assert that Pollard will win handily to-day and that he will be elected easily in November.

The last time I talked with Senator Glass about the state of Virginia politics after the upheaval of 1928 he said merely:

"I hope Byrd is not losing any more sleep than I am over the situation, for I'm not losing any."

There has been some talk about Bishop Cannon running against Senator Glass next year. Most people think the Bishop is too smart for that.

Bishop Cannon is fighting for his political life. It seems strange to be saying that about a churchman of sufficient prominence to be a Bishop. It is true, nevertheless. Whatever issues may be dragged into the fight the real issue is Cannon's attempt to smash the Democratic State organization and to be the political boss of the Old Dominion. The fight made against Dr. Pollard has followed the identical lines of that waged against Gov. Smith. Ridiculous as it might seem, the mercenaries of politics who went up and down the mountain sides whispering the most fabulous stories about Al Smith, still are at work in the home State of Thomas Jefferson, who inspired the religious freedom guarantees of his State and Nation.

The feud between Senator Glass and Cannon goes back many years. There have been factors of prominence in the Democratic party who wished to get the Bishop out of the party. His support of Hoover has given them their chance. But as he carried the State for the Republicans last year he has felt himself bigger than the "machine" and is striving now merely to consolidate his gains, or as they say in the bucket shops to pyramid his winnings.

The lieutenants of Cannon have disregarded the things said of him in the daily newspapers. Their work against Pollard has been done at the cross-roads stores and back in the hills. They do not have expensive literature nor do they indulge in campaign oratory.

To a half dozen idlers about a country store, an anti-Pollard worker, driving up in a dusty car, addresses a question while purchasing five gallons of gasoline:

"See any of them Romanist priests around here campaigning for Pollard? There was a couple of them over at Mills Corners yesterday, I understand, passing out speeches, saying the Pope come over in that Zep airship and is coming down to visit Harry Byrd."

Then he drives on. In twenty-four hours the whole countryside hears the thing as a fact.

It is an old stunt. Gov. Biblo of Mississippi told me one time it was the most deadly form of campaigning with which he had to contend in his 1928 primary fight for renomination.

* * *

Bishop Cannon has been an earache to Senator Glass for many years, ever since they fought out the Prohibition issue on a basis of local option. Although everything vicious in the mind of man was brought into play against Gov. Smith in the Presidential campaign, the whine is heard in the gubernatorial campaign from the Potomac River to the North Carolina line that Gov. Byrd and Senator Glass have been vicious in their attacks on Bishop Cannon.

The question Virginia faces to-day is just this:

Will the men and women who vote against Dr. Pollard in to-day's primary vote for him if he becomes the nominee of his party?

Heretofore, the supporters of a loser accepted their rebuff in good grace and turned in for the winner. They had only one party.

Times have changed in Virginia.

The Ideal Summer Haircut

NO WAY of doing the hair is better fitted to the summer scene than the windblown haircut, from a viewpoint both of appearance and convenience. Knee-length tresses may be more beautiful, but they are certainly a great nuisance on a summer outing. And the same thing is true of the more formal type of bob.

We are presenting to-day two variations of the "windblown." A "boyish" style for the girl who looks her best in sports clothes, and a modified style for the lady who is tres, tres femme. In front, the first is clipped above the ears. In back it is close cropped. The other variation is unshingled in back and swirled, ending in a feathered or natural line. The ears are covered completely.

Now the success of a windblown bob depends not so much on the way it is cut, but on the way it is trained after it is cut. That does not mean, of course, that a head in search of this type of trimming can be turned over to just any wielder of the scissors, though we do know a girl who summered far from civilization and returned with a self-made windblown not half bad.

Choose an expert barber for the job, one who knows the art of setting hair. The right "set" is the first step to training the hair becomingly, you know. It most certainly makes the home training of the hair easier.

The "setting" may or may not be preceded by a permanent wave. Straight spiky strands of hair make a delightfully piquant frame for small faces with rounded childish features. However, softly turned tendrils are as a rule the best bet for the average face.

When in doubt about the training of a "windblown," it is usually wiser for the wearer to put off having the hair professionally set until she has done some experimenting with its arrangement. Then she can better direct the efforts of her hairdresser.

The objection is sometimes raised that windblowns go well with sweaters but not so well with evening frocks. The Beauty Shop is perfectly willing to concede that this cute, ragged manner of doing the hair would be awful topping a trained and backless gown. But trained and backless gowns are not worn to summer hops; at least, not by sophisticated people. And when winter comes it is a quite simple matter to have the hair trimmed, trained and dressed along more formal lines. A marcel wave and a few clever snips of the scissors and the dear, cute gamin head is transformed into something quite dignified.

A Warning to Campers

WHEN vegetation is dry, and the slightest spark may mean an enormous conflagration, it is especially necessary that vacationists make sure camp fires are extinguished. If there is no water at hand the fire may be covered with dirt until all burning embers are effectually smothered and there is absolutely no danger of the wind starting a burning spark.

Before putting out the camp fire burn all papers, boxes and refuse—use sticks to turn these among the ashes so they will be entirely consumed. Bury the tin cans, bottles, &c.—holes can be dug with the cans.

This is not merely a safety precaution but a courtesy to others, so leave the camping place or picnic spot in good condition for the next group of campers or picnicers.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

I AM amazed at the number of business men who are AFRAID of something—usually their wives. I say this because I was interviewing a man the other day and I suggested that a woman's name be signed to the article I was writing about him and he demurred.

I might say this—it would take a space larger than this page to write all the names of those men who have been made famous by their wives, because these men let their wives help them. Women have an uncanny way of telling you how things are going to turn out and their judgment is usually accurate.

Whether your wife is a help or a hindrance is up to you, but remember this—you will travel a long way to find anyone who is more interested in you than your wife, and if she nags you, that proves my point. Be grateful for any attention—some women do not know their husbands are alive!

ARE WE TOO LATE, TEACHER?

WE have just finished Thomas A. Edison's questionnaire for boy geniuses. We admit we are 175 or 200 hours late in handing in our answers, but we claim to have established a new endurance record. Any one who can last more than five minutes with Tomasso's questions has got to be a tough hombre.

The Q.'s and A.'s are as follows, and we hope Mr. Edison, Henry Ford, Col. Lindbergh and all the other professors think we are a bright boy:

1. How would you collect in a reasonably pure state the following gases: (a) nitrogen, (b) ammonia, (c) chlorine? Ans. We would go after nitrogen with a butterfly net. The easiest method to get ammonia gas is to stick your nose over a bottle of smelling salts. And the best way to get a load of chlorine gas is to eavesdrop a bunch of Ziegfeld beauties outside the dressing room door.

2. If you were marooned alone on a tropical island in the Southern Pacific, how would you move a three-ton weight, such as a boulder, 100 feet horizontally and 15 feet vertically? Ans. We would study hypnotism by mail and perform a levitation act on the boulder.

* * *

3. If you were to inherit $1,000,000 within the next year, what would you do with it? Ans. Put it in the bank and quit answering foolish questions.

4. Who was Jenny Lind? Ans. Jenny Lind was a Swedish nightingale whom P. T. Barnum painted white and claimed it was an English sparrow by the name of Jumbo.

5. Balance the following equation by inserting the proper co-efficients: Agno3 plus na2 hpo4 equal ag3 po4 plus nano3 plus hno4. Ans. WEAF 3 P. M. plus KFX 4 to 5 WPG 7.30 equal KDKA 9-10 plus CKGL 11 P. M. special plus WGY up to midnight.

6. If some acquaintance of yours accused you of cheating unfairly, what would you do? Ans. We would spit on our hands, roll up our sleeves and show him there were no aces or kings concealed there.

7. Assume the increase in a colony of mice to be such that the number doubles every three months, how large will the colony be at the end of three years if we start with a pair? Ans. It all depends on whether the pair consists of a male and female. That being the case, there would be 4,000,000 mice and enough left over to make a genuine fur coat.

* * *

8. Who wrote "Treasure Island?" Ans. We don't know who wrote it, but Vincent Astor's ancestors bought up the most of it.

9. One hundred years from now, what place do you think the automobile will have in our daily lives? Ans. It will have to be parked in bed with us.

10. Would a body weigh more or less on the moon than on earth? Ans. We know the answer to "Should a body kiss a body coming through the rye?", but this moon business stumps us.

11. Give a brief statement of what you hope will be a typical day for you when you are fifty years of age. Ans. 10.30 A. M., rise. 11.15 A. M., breakfast. 12 to 1.30 P. M., clipping coupons. 1.30 to 2 P. M., cocktails. 2 to 4 P. M., lunch. 4 to 6 P. M., nap. 6 to 7.30 P. M., poker. 7.30 to 9 P. M., cocktails. 9 to 11 P. M., dinner. 11 P. M. to 1 A. M., riding on a fire truck. 1 to 4 A. M., at Tex Guinan's. 4.30 A. M., bed.

12. What new discovery or invention do you believe would be the greatest benefit to mankind? Ans. A trap door in front of the microphone for radio sopranos.

A Word to Wise Parents

By Alice Judson Peale

SISTERS

JANE came sobbing to her councilor. "Elsie always spoils my fun," she said. "Last summer she did and this summer she's doing it again. I hate her; I just hate her. I don't care if she is my sister. I don't see why I always have to be with her. Mother always makes me play with Elsie and I hate her!"

"Yes, but you're at camp now and there are other children here. You don't have to play with Elsie if you don't want to. Betty and Joan and I are going berrying this morning and we are taking a picnic lunch. Come along with us; it's going to be fun."

"Yes, but Elsie"——

"Never mind about Elsie. Get your pail and we'll meet you under the apple tree."

Jane went. From then on she played more and more with other children. There were fewer and fewer moments of resentment and tears, of humiliating rage against that elder sister.

Of course sisters ought to love each other. They ought to enjoy each other's companionship. But sometimes for various reasons they quarrel so much that their society is anything but mutually wholesome. The best way to help them to get over this phase of their relationship is to separate them for a time. Send them to different schools and different camps. If this is not possible, help each one to find her own friends and to follow her independent pleasures.

When two sisters who have been chronically at odds with each other discover separate satisfactions, their antagonism often disappears as if by magic. And if it does not, the wisest course is surely to encourage each one in an independent course so that the occasions for conflict will be as few as possible.

Cooking Hints

Soak fish for a short time before cooking in strong salted water to take away that "muddy" taste.

When you need bread crumbs in a hurry cut the soft part from a stale loaf, tie it in a clean cheesecloth or muslin bag and gently rub between the hands until bread is crushed.

If you have no cherry pitter, use a steel pen—just stick the pen point into the holder and scoop out pits with the other end.

Summer Beverages

THE first precaution in the matter of summer beverages is moderation and every one knows that too cold a drink or one drunk too hastily has its dangers.

From the standpoint of health as well as taste, fruit juices are ideal summer beverages. They are wholesome and refreshing. They can be mixed with plain or carbonated water. Orange, lemon, pineapple and grape juice are all good and the juice left from canning berries or the jelly that has failed to thicken, especially currant, loganberry or grape, make a satisfying hot weather drink and are more desirable than plain water or many of the soda fountain products.

Be sure and drink only moderately cool beverages and sip them slowly if you value your well being.

White Shantung

THE majority of dresses and jacket suits of shantung are shown in pastel tints. Which perhaps is why those of all white are considered to have great chic. They are rather difficult to find and one shop is specializing in clever little white suits for wear with vivid accessories. The jacket length.

What Society Is Wearing

MRS. ROLLIN BROWNE STRESSES THE VOGUE FOR GAY BEACH PAJAMAS

Mrs. Rollin Browne has chosen light colored silk pajamas for beach wear at East Hampton, L. I.

The blouse is sleeveless and buttoned down the front with shining metal buttons. Attached to it is a pair of voluminous trousers, slightly shirred at the waist line. A belt of contrasting color, also thimmed in the bright buttons, ornaments the trousers. Carrying out the ensemble theme is the accompanying hip length jacket finished off by a small notched collar.

Members of the exclusive beach club serve themselves at the Hamptons. This novel feature has proved exceedingly popular both with members and their guests. Bright beach umbrellas have been placed on the wide veranda and gayly painted little tables are brought forth to accommodate the luncheon parties. So delightful and relaxing is this pleasant beach and club that the majority of members spend the greater part of each day either at the club, on the sands or in the surf.

FUN, ROMANCE MAKE FINE PICTURE

A love story loaded with laughs—this is the new type of screen hilarity being dished up by Buster Keaton in Mero-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Spite Marriage," a comedy production with synchronized score and sound effects which opens today at the Fox California.

"Spite Marriage" is a comedy and a romance combined. The plot itself is just a romantic love story, with a few thrills and a few sighs, even, and a great deal of human interest. But the way Buster plays every scene makes it one of the healthiest mowles of the season.

Buster is a tailor in the story, and borrows his customers' suits to pose as millionaire and win the hand of a stage star. Then, after she marries him, his troubles begin. They range from the wrecking of the set on the stage when he tries to act, to a storm at sea, fire aboard ship, battles with rum runners, and other hilarious and thrilling adventures.

Thrills, played Buster's way, with his serious face, become most hilarious things, and the frozen faced comedian took quite a few chances to get laughs.

Dorothy Sebastian as Trilby Drew, the actress heroine, is easy to look upon and furnishes Buster every reason for falling in love. She plays the ship scenes with considerable skill, and makes the romantic details things to be long remembered. Leila Hymans is effective and very beautiful as the blonde vamp and Edward Earle convincing and altogether "the type" as the stage leading man in the theatrical scenes of the picture.

William Bechtel plays the theatrical impresario, a clever bit of character comedy. John Byron makes a formadabe rum runner in the ocean scenes.

Edward Sedgwick, who directed Keaton in "The Cameraman," directed the new production with the same deft artistry, and Lew Lipton and Ernest S. Pagano are responsible for the clever story which was elaborately staged and produced.

GIRL CHARGES TIGHTEN ON PANTAGES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15—UP—The charges of 17-year old Eunice Pringle that she was attacked by Alexander Pantages were strengthened late today at the millionaire theater man's preliminary hearing by a witness who described her flight from Pantages' secluded "consultation" room.

L. W. Gordon, a tenant of the theater building, told of the girl's screams and of pleas for help in which she cried she had been assaulted.

Gordon detailed the condition of Pantages' clothing as the girl ran out of the room and the open door revealed the theater man, assertedly in a kneeling position.

Miss Pringle had left the stand just before Gordon began his testimony and her statements had been unshaken after hours of cross examinatio nby defense attorneys.

Only a short time before she was excused, the girl collapsed for the third time when defense attorneys required her to repeat descriptive detail of the alleged assault.

Throughout the day the defense continued without success its attempts to tear down Miss Pringle's moral character by questioning her about her friends.

A recess was taken late in the afternoon to allow municipal judge Leonard ilson to testify in another case. He ordered night sessions to expedite the hearing, which may require a week.

War Mothers To Attend Madeen Funeral Today

Bargain Offered In New Money

BOSTON.— Massachusetts citizens have been offered a big bargain in United States currency. As long as they last, half dollars will be sold to the public by the state treasurer for 50 cents each.

By act of Congress in 1920 and 1921, 300,000 Pilgrim half dollars were minted as souvenirs of the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims. Most of these were sold at $1 each. Coins representing a value of $24,775 remain unsold, however, and the state treasurer has now been authorized to sell these at par.

—RAGS WANTED—

ON WITH THE SHOW

By ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"ON WITH THE SHOW," is the first 100% natural color, Vitaphone picture. It is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

Willie Durant, financial backer of a stranded musical comedy, is friendly with Nita French, the star, but refuses to put up any more money. He is unsuccessfully attentive to Kitty, the stage-struck check room girl, and has inveigled her father, Dad Malone, and her sweetheart, Jimmy, to invest their life savings to gain a hold on the girl. Jerry Connolly, the manager, quarrels with Durant over the matter and takes a gun from him. The box-office is robbed. Joe, the detective, suspects Jimmy. Kitty is followed to the prop room by Durant, who tries to make love to her. Jimmy discovers them and hits Durant.

"How should I start being myself," Kitty asked, sparring for time to think.

"Well, in th' firs' place, you could come over here an' sit down an' be a li'l more sociable." He patted the empty space on the couch beside him. "An' then suppose we have a li'l drink. Jus' a li'l snifter." He pulled a tall silver flask from his pocket, shook it, and then reached across to a cupboard beside him where various and oddly assorted glasses filled the shelves. He arranged two tumblers and poured the drinks.

"If I do," Kitty began, "will you—will you forget about the robbery and save the show?"

Durant grinned. "Tha's a big order for a li'l girl, but I might."

She Tried to Fight Him Off

He rose to his feet, picking up one glass, and handed it to Kitty. "Isn't it worth taking a chance?"

The girl hesitated. "Yes," she said slowly, "I guess it is." She took the tumbler from his outstretched hand and with a wry face downed the liquor. The strong alcohol burned her throat. She sputtered and coughed, the tears coming into her eyes.

Durant patted her back, laughing at her discomfort. "You're even cute when you choke," he caught her hand, pressing it to his lips. "I'm mad about you, Kitty. I'd do 'nything—'nything in the worl' for you."

"Give me a drink of water, then," Kitty managed to gasp, between coughs.

Still laughing, Durant took her empty glass and went over to the grimy sink, turning on the water. He filled the tumbler and brought it back, holding it to the girl's lips.

"Oo-o-oh! How anyone can drink that stuff for pleasure!" Kitty swallowed some of the water and looked up at Durant, wiping the tears from her eyes.

"You'll learn," the backer assured her, taking up his own glass and downing the Scotch in one hasty gulp. "No kidding, honey, I'm crazy 'bout you—jus' crazy 'bout you. I love you." He seized her hands and held them tight.

"Really?" Kitty questioned. She tried to make her tone light and bantering to conceal the fear that was stealing over her. But she made no effort to withdraw her hands. "What kind of love?"

"Practical love! The kind that comes wrapped up with jewelry. Tha's what I'm offering you—you sweet, silly li'l kid. The sort of love that doesn't fade with th' moon. Don't you unnerstand, Kitty? I could do a lot of nice things for you if you'd only le' me. Don't you unnerstand, Kitty? You're green. Get som' 'xperience an' get it from me."

"Maybe I am green," Kitty spoke slowly, as though pondering over the man's words.

"Awful green." Durant shook his head, sorrowfully. "Hurts my eyes, you're so green. Have t' wear smoked glasses when I look at you, but what it takes t' remove green Willie's got!"

He ran his hand experimentally along her arm, and still Kitty voiced no protest. Duran felt that he was making headway, and about time, too. Everything was in his favor. He was alone with the girl in a room far removed from the activity of the stage, and he was playing a familiar game—a game in which he held the trump cards. And best of all, Nita would be occupied with her scene for some little time. Slowly his arm encircled her neck.

Kitty tried to edge away without seeming to repulse her admirer. She still hedged for time, hoping against hope that fate would intervene to solve all the difficulties. She could feel Durant's breath warm on her cheek as his face came closer to hers.

"Oh, gee, oh gosh, you're the sweetes' li'l thing I've ever met." Durant drew her to him, but before he could kiss her, Kitty had suddenly extricated herself and was standing on the other side of the table. Durant blinked.

"Remember I haven't promised anything yet." Kitty smiled seductively, her head perked on one side. "But if I do, will you give Jerry a check for Sam and the cast?"

"Um-m-m, maybe," Durant hesitated. 'But don' rush me. I don' like t' be rushed. Come on, give us a kiss to close the deal—jus' a li'l kiss to close the deal."

"No—not right now." Kitty clung to her side of the table, trying not to appear frightened.

But the sight of her so near, and the sweet, warm remembrance of her in his arms made the backer forget everything but that he wanted her and was determined to have her. With a swift movement of his hands he flung aside the table and seized her, holding her close and kissing the full red lips, the white throat, the fragrant hair.

Furiously Kitty fought him off, pushing his head away, trying to escape his strong arms that held her crushed to him. Tears of anger and chagrin filled her eyes, blinding her. Then with one full sweep of her strong, young arm she slapped him squarely across the mouth. He fell back, clapping his hand to his face where Kitty had struck him.

"Say, wha's the big idea?" he demanded, a storm of rage and passion shaking him into a kind of sobriety. "What d' you think you're pulling, after telling me we were going to be—"

"Get this, you big fourflusher." Kitty's voice was sharp and stinging, cutting like the lash of a whip. "We're not going to be anything. Now beat it before I—" She seized a vase and raised it menacingly.

"I'll teach you to string me along." With one leap Durant cleared the over-turned table, his hands outstretched to grasp the girl.

Ducking aside, Kitty evaded him and ran towards the door, Durant after her. With a quick turn she faced him and hurled the vase directly at his head. He dodged. The china shattered against the wall. She was in the backer's arms, struggling. One scream, and his hand covered her mouth. In another instant the door swung open and in its yawning width stood Jimmy.

CHAPTER X

The usher stared, mingled amazement and consternation written on his face. He seemed to be trying to understand the situation. The sight of Kitty in Durant's arms held him spellbound, but as the light of understanding dawned, the words of the speech he had been rehearsing came back to him. He flung himself on Durant, whirling him about.

"You may be my boss, Mr. Durant," he fairly shouted. And then the rehearsed words deserted him, and a natural reaction rose to the fore. "You dirty rat!" With one blow of his fist he caught the backer squarely upon the chin and the man landed on the floor in a heap.

"Get th'—get out of here before I kill you." Jimmy was standing in front of the backer, his fists clenched, his eyes gleaming.

"Jimmy!" Kitty seemed suddenly to become aware of what was going on. Horror, surprise and relief all took possession of her at the same moment. She was relieved because she had been extricated from a hateful position and yet horrified because Jimmy had dared to strike Durant. Not that Durant didn't deserve it, but because he was the one person who could save Jimmy and pull the show out of its present predicament.

"I'll fix you, you fresh punk!" Durant had come to enough to regain the use of his voice, but he didn't care to linger longer. He turned on his heel and staggered through the door, still nursing his battered jaw.

Jimmy, so angry and excited that he scarcely realized what he was doing, started to follow the man. Kitty seized his arm and shook him.

Protect Your Furniture

A $1.25 to Rid Your Home of Moths May Save You Hundreds of Dollars.

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that upon expansion the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

When the sacks are empty, fill them again.

FLAMES HIT 6 CALIFORNIA FORESTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—UP — Flames ate their way through half a dozen forests in northern California tonight, spreading more rapidly than hundreds of fire fighters had expected.

Brush dried by scorching heat helped the flames to race through valuable woods and defy the men who sought to control them.

New fires were reported in Shasta county, Trinity national forest, the Sierra foothills and Sonoma county while the conflagrations that started in Santa Barbara national forest and the California-Oregon state line several days ago continued to cause worry.

The boundary line blaze had swept down from Oregon and had destroyed 1000 acres of timber in this state near Beswick. Approximately 100 men were under direction of rangers.

More than 10,000 acres were smouldering in the Cuyama section of the Santa Barbara forest and the blaze was advancing on a six mile front.

Mining property in the vicinity of Whiskytown in Shasta county was threatened and backfiring was resorted to.

Reinfrocements for a small band of men fighting a fire that had destroyed 350 acres in Trinity national forest were ordered.

CHINA TO OUST RAILROAD CHIEFS

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Aug. 15.—UP—The office of Chang Hsueh Liang, dictator of Manchuria, today officially stated that there have been no armed clashes on the border since Wednesday, when a small "brawl" was reported near Manchuli.

The frontier—where Chinese and Russian troops face each other—is quiet, although Soviet troops were accused of "constantly encroaching" on China. There is no activity, however which resembles real hostilities, the dictator's office said.

Negotiation with Russia for settlement of the conflict over the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria have been halted, but it is hoped by officials that they may be resumed shortly and lead to a formal conference to settle the dispute.

It is understood here that Lu Yuan-Huang, manager of the railroad, and other officials who are considered responsible for the dispute will be dismissed. Kao Chii, who is vice chairman of the communications bureau, is scheduled to succeed to the post of manager.

A United Press dispatch from Harbin this morning also denied reports of new border clashes or a Soviet invasion.

SOVIET-CHINESE CONFERENCE FAILS

MANCHULI, Manchuria, Aug. 15—UP—N. B. Melnikoff, former Soviet consul general at Harbin, has departed for Moscow and Chu Shao-Yang, Chinese representative has left for Harbin, abandoning efforts to negotiate the Chinese-Russian conflict informally.

The outlook is considered "almost hopeless" by observers here.

The advices received here have not confirmed reports of a Russian invasion of Manchuria along the Amur river but reports were received of concentration of Soviet and Chinese troops along the border at various places, apparently for the purpose of demonstrations of strength.

CHINESE TROOPS RECEIVE ORDERS

TOKIO, Aug. 15.—UP—A Nippon Demo agency dispatch from Mukden today said Chang Hsueh-Liang had ordered three brigades to be prepared to proceed to the border in consequence of alleged Russian occupation of Manchurian territory at two points Tuesday.

Search Widens In Murder Of Justice Agent

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 15.—UP—Investigation into the murder of Paul Edward Reynolds, department of justice agent, may reveal a political scandal that will lead to high ups in other southwestern states.

First intimation that the inquiry may lead to other states, came in the arrest of two women and a man at Buckey, Ariz.

Papers found in possession of the trio involve alleged illegal parole and pardon activities, which may lead the officers to Salt Lake City, Utah.

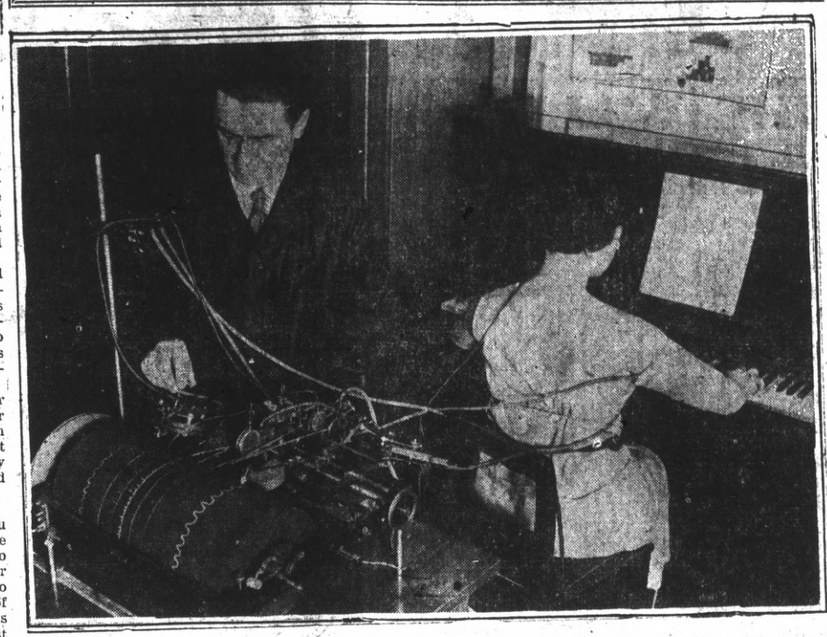

The trio is held incommunicado by department of justice agents. Their names are being suppressed.

Thirty federal operatives from all over the United States are assembled here on various angles of the case.

The officers spent the greater part of the day questioning federal employes in this city, including two women.

Although efforts of the federal agents have centered about finding those who shot Reynolds and then threw his body in an irrigation ditch, they appear equally anxious to complete the investigations begun by the dead officer, which are expected to have far reaching effects and to involve men of powerful influence.

PATIENTS LISTEN TO RADIO DURING SERIOUS OPERATIONS

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 15—UP—Dr. George Norman Pease of Portland, Me., today described to the Pan-Pacific surgical conference how modern surgery makes it possible for a patient to remain conscious—and enjoy a radio concert—during a major operation.

Dr. Pease described the use of spinal anaesthesia—a fairly modern practice in surgery to the conference delegates assembled under auspices of the Pan-Pacific union.

"Spinal anaesthesia has a very definite place in surgery and in many cases it is the only anaesthesia that makes an operation possible and safe," the speaker said, describing his 15 years of practical experience with spinal anaesthesia.

Safe Use

He described the method of administering a spinal anaesthetic by introduction into the spine. It leaves the patient conscious but utterly without sensation in the lower part of the body, Dr. Pease said.

"Spinal anaesthesia as we have now learned to use it, is reasonably safe," he continued. He said that, during his experience with more than 200 patients in such cases, there were only two fatalities.

As advantages, he said the method gives perfect relaxation such as is not obtained otherwise.

Radio Used

"We have installed a radio with a headset for the patient," he said. "The radio tends to keep the patient's mind off the operation and gives him something pleasant to hear. It also closes his ears to other sounds.

"The radio, I believe, is a factor of importance, especially with women patients. They are apt to get extremely nervous if allowed to lie there and imagine what is happening to them."

Dr. Pease said spinal anaesthesia is indicated in cases of bad hearts, kidneys or lungs, where there is danger in general anaesthesia, or in cases which are too extensive for local and not suitable for general anaesthesia.

BROWNING'S DIET PUZZLE TO TRAILING DETECTIVES

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—UP—One of the oddest reports imaginable is almost any one of the reports of the detectives now shadowing—for some reason best known to whoever is hiring them—Edward West Browning, he who was once Mrs. Frances (Peaches) Browning's big old daddy man.

"Daddy" Browning, as he complained bitterly only a couple of days ago, can't hardly wipe his face these last few weeks without shaking a private detective out of the towel. He has a premonition that something is about to happen. But he hasn't let it get him down. When it comes it will find a Browning forewarned and forearmed with invincible health.

A sheet from a detective's notebook lends credence to the report along Broadway that some of the sleuths on the rich realtor's trail have suffered nervous breakdowns.

"Operative X-23," one such account reads "reported on at 5:30 a. m. Subject arose at 6 a. m and waved arms around above head. Subject entered waterproofed room and turned lawn hose on self. Subject yelled and beat chest. Butler entered bearing orange. Subject ate same. Butler entered with handfull of grass. Subject ate grass. Butler entered with glass of water. Subject drank and gave call of the wild.

"Later subject entered pink Rolls Royce and took seat beside 20-pound dumbell previously noted. Subject embraced dumbell and car drove away. Note—found two more vest buttons and a shirt stud in driveway."

"Daddy" stroking his swelling biceps, consented to clarify some of these strange matters for the press today.

"Certainly I eat an occasional tuft of grass," said "Daddy." "It keeps me in the pink. I'm never afraid of what comes in front of me. I work from 12 to 14 hours a day and I haven't been in a dining room for four years. Cooked food is no fit provender for a healthy animal. Eat grass—that's the stuff, and corn and oats and sometimes fruit."

When school bells are ringing... instant hot water helps get the children off...

...saves 4 to 6 hours each week in housework

WHEN there are little faces to be washed, clean clothes to be put on and all before the school bell rings, then an abundant supply of hot water saves mother's time—if she has hot water without bother or waiting.

Then each week there are 4 to 6 hours more for motoring, shopping or outdoor sports.

No need of watching the automatic gas water heater

With the automatic water heater, a thermostat turns the gas on and off. It maintains the water temperature at 140 degrees day and night. At any moment one can have deep hot water for bathing, a basinful for shaving. No gas is wasted keeping the water hot, the water stays hot because the boiler is insulated.

This instant hot water service costs less than one-fifth of a cent per gallon — the lowest cost of any method of heating water in the home.

SPECIAL OFFER BY THE P. G. and E.

For a brief term, you can have instant hot water service put into your own home for a very low first payment and the balance in easy monthly payments. The details on replacing your old water heater with a new automatic gas water heater can be obtained by telephoning or calling at our local office or at the local dealers.

Killing Flies

Make a game of it with this stainless spray— this new type sprayer

It's fun—catch 'em in mid-air and send 'em into a tailspin, sneak up on 'em and pot-shot a whole colony on the window shade!

Sprays are probably the most effective way of killing flies, but they've not always been safe to use in the house. Some made ugly stains on walls, curtains, clothes.

Now there's a spray you can use anywhere—a stainless spray. Shell laboratories produced it. Used as directed it evaporates completely with no trace of staining.

Old-style spray pumps, you remember, had a clumsy round tank to be filled. The new Shell Sprayer screws directly onto the Shell Fly Spray can—no filling, spilling, muss or trouble. See the spray and sprayer at your stores or at Shell stations.

$50 Borrower Needs 'Break,' Says Official

LANSING, Mich., July 14—The little borrower is in a tough spot and needs a "break," thinks Rudolph E. Reichert, state banking commissioner.

"Bankers have given scant consideration to the person who needs to borrow $50 to $200," he says, "although these people form the backbone of our country and constitute the mass of our savings depositors.

"We have turned him down because of the cost of handling his loan and have forced him to go to small loan operators who charge 42 per cent a year, which in many cases is all he has and can earn. The wage class needs a new deal."

and Here's the Answer!

In common with several of the leading banks of California, the Mechanics Bank has noted the condition shown in the above news item. And has organized the Small Loans Department to take care of such necessary borrowing.

SPORTS

OAKS DEFEATED BY SOLONS IN THIRD

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15—UP—Ninth inning rallies were cut short by Hollywood and the Missions today so that the "nip and tuck" race for first place in the second half of the Pacific coast league season might continue.

Hollywood defeated San Francisco's Seals, 6 to 4, Heath's single in the eighth inning accounting for the winning run, and the Missions nosed out Los Angeles 7 to 6, the winning run also being scored in the eighth when Boone singled.

The Sheiks took a commanding lead with four runs in the fourth inning but had it not been for Heath's hit they would have been tied in the ninth. As it was the Seal's rally was terminated after two runs had been made and they were still two short.

Los Angeles was leading, 5 to 2, at the end of the sixth but the Missions made five runs in the next two innings and held the Angels to one run in the eighth.

Sacramento easily defeated Oakland, 8 to 2, and Portland had little trouble in trouncing Seattle 6 to 2.

Campolo Beats Tom Heeney In Ninth Round

EBBETS FIELD, New York, Aug. 15.—UP—Victorio Campolo, giant Argentine heavyweight scored a sensational victory over Tom Heeney of New Zealand in the ninth round of a scheduled 10 round bout here tonight, before a record crowd of more than 20,000.

Referee Jimmie Crowley stopped the fight after Heeney had been floored for a count of nine with a terrific right upper-cut to the chin.

His face badly cut up and covered with blood, Heeney was staggering helplessly around the ring when the contest was halted after two minutes and 46 seconds of the round.

Coming back to outfight Heeney after the game New Zealander had carried the fight to him in the early rounds, Campolo sent the crowd wild with his furious fighting during the last rounds.

The Argentine took every punch Heeney had in the early rounds, lost three of the first four and then had enough left to come from behind and win.

NEW HIGHWAY MOTOR PATROL TO WAR ON RECKLESS DRIVERS

Gov. C. C. Young yesterday added his personal and official influence to the campaign to stamp out deaths and accidents by motor vehicles in the streets and highways of California.

In an official pronouncement made public through the California committee on Public Safety of which the Eastbay Safety Council is a member, the governor declared that the reckless and criminally careless, the drunken and grossly incompetent motor vehicle operator must be eliminated from the highways of California.

Arthur W. Moore, president of the Eastbay Safety Council announced that the organization will cooperate with the statewide committee on a thirty day educational campaign to be followed by 11 months of cooperative education and enforcement stressing the violations which cause seasonal increases in traffic accidents.

Council Lauded

"The Eastbay Safety Council has been organized for the past six and one half years and has always stood steadfastly for the improvement of safety conditions," said Moore.

"We are glad to join with the California committee on Public Safety in a movement which would do much toward making traffic conditions better throughout the state.

"We feel that we have been pioneers in the work of reducing motor vehicle accidents in Oakland and have charts showing the result of safety education and enforcement.

"The Eastbay Safety Council is very glad to see the California committee on Public Safety take up the work of accident prevention in a statewide way and will lend every cooperation and assistance possible to Governor Young and his campaign for reducing motor vehicle accidents."

New Motor Patrol

California's motor vehicle patrol, enacted into the law by the last legislature came into effect yesterday.

In this connection, Governor Young said: "Today the state of California is taking on a new activity—an activity so important to all our citizens as to be possibly worth something more than a passing mention. I refer to the creation of a statewide Highway Motor patrol. Through the generous cooperation of the California committee on Public Safety and the press of California, I am privileged to point out some of the aims and purposes of this new unified highway patrol.

"Nearly two thousand citizens of California, men, women and helpless children, met death on our streets and highways during the year 1928. Many other thousands were maimed and injured. Investigation shows that practically all these deaths and injuries were inavoidable. Carelessness, recklessness, intoxication, and ignorance were responsible for nearly all this toll of human life and limb.

To Serve Public

"Our State Division of Motor Vehicles is impressing upon the motor officials of its new patrol that their problem in preventing these deaths and injuries is not with the general motoring public. The chief concern must be cheerfully and good naturedly to serve that public by helping to make travel on our highways safe and pleasant. Ninety-nine percent of our motorists are careful and law abiding. With these the officers of our highway patrol must ever be friends and allies, all working toward the same end of an increasing public safety.

"The menace in highway travel lies with the remaining one percent. In this group are found the reckless and the criminally careless, the drunken and the grossly incompetent drivers. These must be made, either to reform, or be forever eliminated from our highways. In accomplishing this our new motor patrol will play its part, but it must be backed up by the support and sympathy and good will of the general motoring public.

"In ther words, prevention of motor accidents, and the reduction of resulting deaths and injuries, is a duty incumbent not only on public officials, but on all citizens of the state. Safety laws, even with continuous enforcement, will not minimize accidents unless endorsed by public opinion and supplemented by safe practices on the part of individuals. There is, therefore, necessity for a well organized educational campaign designed to reach each citizen and appeal to every group.

Asks Cooperation

"Such a campaign has been inaugurated by the California committee on Public Safety, an organization embracing in its membership public officials and groups representing all phases of community life throughout California. As governor of this state, I earnestly appeal to all our citizens to cooperate with this committee on Public Safety in the splendid campaign of education which it is undertaking. I also urge that they stand back of our new highway patrol, as well as all other state and local authorities, in the efforts which are being made to bring about a saner and safer use of California highways.

"If this is done, I predict that motor hazards will decrease in the state, just as they have decreased in some of our cities where similar endeavors have been undertaken. Human life is too valuable to be sacrificed inattention and negligence. The state of California, with its newly created highway patrol, and every other of its agencies, proposed to do its part in this vitally important promotion of public safety."

CROSS COUNTRY REFUEL PLANE 'LOST'

flight plans as it was stated definitely that the route would be over Portland, down the coast to San Francisco and east via Salt Lake, Cheyenne, Wyo., Cleveland and on to New York.

PREPARATIONS MADE TO REFUEL AT S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15—UP—Preparations to refuel the Spokane "Sun God" when it arrives over this city on its nonstop refueling flight across the country and return were completed late tonight.

Nick Mamer, pilot of the Sun God was expected to reach San Francisco about three a. m. Friday and was to circle the bay region until five a. m. when the sun rises, officials of Mills Field, municipal airport said.

As soon as it is light enough for the refueling plane, with Don Templeton at the controls and James Warner, radio operator on the Southern Cross during the famous flight of the craft from California to Australia will assist him.

The plane will take on 300 gallons here, enough to carry it to Cheyenne where the next refueling has been planned, according to estimates. Eight gallons of oil will also be placed on board.

INDIANS ASSIST IN CHRISTENING PLANE

FELTS FIELD, Spokane, Wash. Aug. 15.—UP—The enthusiasm of thousands of persons was let loose here today in colorful ceremonies preceding the scheduled take-off at 6 p. m. of the Spokane Sun God on its transcontinental round trip refueling flight.

The solemn chants of the Spokane Indians, under Chief Garry, were part of the festivities of christening the Buhl Airsedan before Lieut. Nick Mamer and his co-pilot, Art Walker, climbed into the cockpit to begin their long flight.

Scores of planes zoomed through stunts while mechanics tuned up the 300 horsepower Wright whirlwind motor of the Sun God.

Pair Confident

Mamer and Walker were in high spirits and confidently expected to bring their ship back to Spokane after a trip to New York in approximately 72 hours and demonstrate the feasibility of long distance refueling flights under normal flying conditions.

Dr. James Kimball, chief meteorologist of the U. S. Weather Bureau in New York, who started Lindbergh and other aviators on epochal flights reported that weather conditions over the entire continent were near perfect.

The Sun God will head south over the newly surveyed air mail route and is expected to pass over Swan Island airport at Portland about 10 p. m. Mamer will send his ship to an altitude of about 10,000 feet in crossing the Siskiyou mountains en route to San Francisco.

To Refuel Here

After circling the Golden Gate sometime before dawn the first refueling contact will be made. Then the ship will point its nose eastward over the Sierra Nevadas and Rockies to Cheyenne where refuelers again will replenish the gasoline and oil supplies.

Mamer expected to make the third contact at Cleveland, Ohio about 10 a. m. Saturday. Capt. Frank Hawks, transcontinental record holder, will have charge of refueling there and will accompany the Sun God on a part of the eastern flight.

Carries Load

On reaching New York the plane will refuel and fly over the harbor and downtown district and then head west to Chicago. The course calls for a journey over the Twin Cities, Fargo, Bismarck, Miles City, Butte, Missoula and back to Felts field.

Mamer's refueling ship will be on hand to meet him at St. Paul and another refueler will await him at Missoula as an emergency measure.

The plane will carry a full load and Mamer believes the flight will be valuable to the aeronautical industry.

Tinkering with the carburetor may prove to be more harmful than wise. The carburetor is a delicate piece of mechanism and requires the attention of an expert.

Bagshaw To Try Comeback This Season

SEATTLE, Aug. 14—UP—Not the Golden Bears, Cardinals, nor Trojans, but Politics, with a capital "P" will be the greatest foe the Huskies of the University of Washington face as they start the 1929 football season according to all advance dope.

Around the attempted "comeback" of little Enoch Bagshaw as coach will center the success of the year—and the comeback will not be necessary as far as the players are concerned, but he must solve the great task of uniting the student body, and bringing a small but loud faction of opponents back into line.

"The battle of Bagshaw"—an attempt to remove him—kept the hot-stove league hot all winter. It rumbled and roared and echoes still are heard. The campus ran red and under the great dome of the statehouse in Olympia they discussed whether "Baggy" was a sufficiently good showman for the great job of tutoring Huskies in the art of pig-skin packing.

Carroll Lost

Despite the loss of the famous "Chuck" Carroll, the Huskies' contribution to All-American, who by the way, fought a good fight in behalf of the retention of Bagshaw, Washington will not be lacking in material.

A strong bunch of freshmen are coming to join the more than score of lettermen who will return.

Bill Marsh, who will be a sophomore, was expected to do much. He is a kicker and a passer with lots of ability.

Paul Jessup, captain-elect, who has been tossing the shot around the country during the winter, may be shifted from his post at tackle to the center job, dopesters say.

New Half

Henry Wentworth was relied on to continue doing a good job at the other tackle position.

Washington fans are also counting on Merle Huffard, sophomore, a halfback, to do much toward taking the place of Carroll.

Walter Sahli, end, who showed a lot of stiff last year, but who was pretty light is reported to have put on some additional weight and will be a good wing threat.

So "Baggy" will have some strength and the players will be with him, it was indicated during the "battle." When student leaders attempted to break their contract with he coach during the winter, after a poor 1928 season, Carroll led the united Huskies in defending the mentor.

The real success of the Husky season, avowedly, will be measured on the cash register as much as on the score board, and the attitude of the student body, in getting the great stadium filled as well as in backing of the team, presents a pretty problem.

FONG WAN HERBS SPECIALLY COMPOUNDED RELIEVE MANY AILMENTS AT ONCE.

Richmond, Cal. June 30, 1928.
For years I had terrible pains in my right side. I also had liver and gall bladder trouble, which caused the pain to run clear around my back. All the healers whom I consulted said that I cound not be helped unless an operation was performed.
FONG WAN Eminently Successful Herbalist. Being aware that many of my friends had been greatly benefitted by the Fong Wan herbs, I began to take them. I drank the tea conscientiously for seven weeks, at the end of which time I felt that my relief was complete. Now I have the added satisfaction of knowing that it is also permanent, for a year has elapsed and I am still free from pain and feel splendid.

DEBT PARLEY IN GRAVE CRISIS

THE HAGUE, Aug. 15—UP—Hopes for speedy settlement of the crisis raised at the international conference by British demands for revision of the Young reparations plan were diminished tonight by failure of negotiators to make any substantial progress.

Delegates considered the situation extremely grave when the French sources made it known that Phillip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, had refused all proposals submitted to him today by Aemile Franqui, Belgian financial expert, in behalf of France, Italy, Belgium, and Japan.

The same sources also said Snowden remained firm in his demands for revision of the Young plan to favor Britain and declared it is useless to hold the scheduled meeting of the financial commission Saturday unless the powers involved have more concrete and more favorable proposals to offer.

"No Threats"

British sources, however, said that Snowden had not threatened to leave the conference and delegates still holding hopes of a compromise were concentrating on efforts to postpone the financial commission meeting until next week.

The atmosphere of hopelessness around the conference was increased by a meeting this evening of leaders of the French, Italian, Belgian and Japanese delegations at which it was decided that it is impossible to remodel the Young plan.

It was understood that the best proposal which Francqui was able to make to Snowden was an annual payment of 17,000,000 gold marks (about $4,250,000) as compared to the $12,500,000 demanded by Britain. This was in addition to the amount which had been reserved for paying expenses of the Rhineland army of occupation for the last two months, estimated at about 200,000,000 marks.

Compromise Asked

The four powers insist that all proposals for compromise must be made within the framework of the plan.

Snowden held these offers insufficient, according to the French delegation announcement.

Because of these developments, and the decision that it is impossible to redraft the percentages clauses of the Young plan, the meeting of the financial commission Saturday may see the final rejection of British demands as they now stand.

Diesel Ferry Boats Placed On Local Run

Diesel powered ferry boats to replace the ones driven by steam have been placed on the run between Richmond and San Francisco, it was announced yesterday through the Chamber of Commerce in a letter to P. M. Sanford, president of the local Chamber of Commerce.

"The diesel boats are, if anything, superior to the old ones in service and comfort to passengers," said Collins. "They have nice appointments, a good restaurant, a well furnished lounge for women and a comfortable smoking cabin for men. They will make the same time as the former boats and will maintain the same schedules."

The new boats are the Golden Age and the Golden West, replacing the steam ferries called the Yosemite and the Shasta, which have been serving Richmond.

The diesel vessels are newer boats than the ones they replace according to Collins. They have been in service only a short time, having been used on various parts of the bay during peak hours.

They are approximately the same size as the steam ferries, carrying the same number of automobiles.

Local Driver Hurt In Crash

Gustave Champagne, 22, of 5699 Tehama avenue, Richmond, suffered cuts, bruises and lacerations when his machine crashed into a parked car on Lake Park avenue, Oakland, yesterday.

Police declare that the crash was due to Champagne's attempt to avert a collision with another car.

STATE BUYING OF SPANS STUDIED

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 15.—Steps toward the appraisal and purchase soon of the Carquinez bridge by the state by agreement or through condemnation proceedings looms as the result of power now held by the state with the bridge franchise laws which became effective Wednesday.

According to reports, the American Toll Bridge company seeks $10,500,000 for the span while the state is willing to pay but $8,500,000.

The application of the Carquinez Toll Bridge company for a franchise to construct a span from Eckley to Dillon Point is expected to play an important part in the state acquiring soon the Crockett bridge.

Little likihood of favorable action on the petition for a petition for franchise is expected since Bert B. Meek, director of public works, has declared that the state will not grant a franchise to private firms and will endeavor to acquire existing toll bridges.

Dr. Otto Freyermuth, president of the Carquinez Toll bridge company, in his application agreed to sell the proposed bridge to the state at any time for a price of $5,000,000. It was pointed out today that in view of his offer, the state department would be justified in purchasing the Crockett span at a price from $8,500,000 to $10,000,000.

Meek held a conference today with Gov. C. C. Young in regard to the Freyermuth petition and the one of Barrett and Hilp for a franchise to construct a bridge from San Francisco to Alameda. Following the conference, Meek declared that "this is no time to muddy up the waters with applications for bay bridge franchises by various private interests. It is essential that the San Francisco bridge be owned by the people so that it may be free bridge as soon as possible. The state's policy, as heretofore plainly stated, is to acquire all existing toll bridges and privately owned structures, not to franchise new ones."

The department has indicated that at this time the state is not desirous of acquiring either the Antioch, Sears Point, Dumbarton, San Mateo-Hayward bridges or the Ehrenberg span in Riverside county.

Loyal American Advance Society At Dinner Meet

The first dinner meeting of the Loyal American Advance society was held last night in Woodman hall with C. E. Clark as chairman of the evening. The dinner was served by the Cathelen group.

Addresses were delivered by Judge J. F. Plank of El Cerrito, supreme president, by W. J. Hill of Albany, and by local members.

Plans are being made for the consolidation of Lincoln Post No. 3, of El Cerrito with McKinley Post No. 4 of Richmond. The committee from the local post appointed to meet with the El Cerrito post is composed of C. E. Clark, Dr. L. W. Wuesthoff, H. H. Turley and Geirge F. Black.

The next dinner meeting of this organization will be held Sept. 19, and the next business meeting on Sept. 5.
